Cooper Diabetes Center

(Recognized by the American Diabetes Association)

A program of Cooper University Endocrinology and the Center for Health and Wellness, offering a comprehensive, multi-disciplinary approach to diabetes management.

- Moving Forward for People with Type 1
  Designed for the unique needs of people with Type 1 diabetes, this four-part interactive program, addresses issues only people with Type 1 can have together—discussions about glucagon, DKA, reproduction, starting families, and day to day fluctuations in Blood Glucose. Moving Forward will combine your years of experience with advances in technology and the most up-to-date outcomes based research in diabetes management.

- The Diabetes Weigh
  A comprehensive self-management program that educates individuals about how diet, medication and exercise affect blood glucose levels, as well as medical management and insulin administration, if necessary.

- Sustained Support
  Graduates of The Diabetes Weigh can sustain the lifestyle changes to better self-manage diabetes by attending a free monthly maintenance program.

- Pregnancy and Diabetes
  Individual diabetes education/nutrition counseling is provided for women diagnosed with gestational and pregnancy or have diabetes prior to pregnancy.

Location:
